Decline in New COVID 19 Cases May Be Promising

For the first time in over a month the Sunday combined number of new COVID 19 cases among the three area counties totaled less than 100.

Monroe was the lowest with only 11 new cases, just two more than its previous low of 9. Northampton added only 33 cases which is its second lowest of the month. Lehigh registered 50 new cases which is below average for them.

Overall, the state's total increased by 1116 which is significantly lower than its monthly average.

Assuming that this is not another matter of delayed results, today's stats are promising.

Slate Belt Liquor Stores Reopen Monday

Slate Belt liquor stores are among many in Pennsylvania that will reopen Monday April 27

Most reopened stores will take from 50 to 100 orders per day on a first-call, first-served basis beginning at 9 a.m. Monday through Saturday. Employees will work to schedule pickup appointments with customers between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m. on those days. Some stores, however, will operate with more limited days and hours.

The PLCB is implementing public health best practices to ensure safe environments for their staff. Prior to reopening to employees, each facility supporting e-commerce and curbside pickup order fulfillment was professionally sanitized. Additionally, enhanced and more frequent cleaning and disinfecting is in practice, employees are being provided masks, gloves and frequent opportunities to wash hands, and the number of employees working in a facility at any time is limited to maintain social distancing protocols

Pen Argyl Student Reads To Children

by Jackie Hower

Madison Williams was in her senior year at DeSales University majoring in theatre when school closures and stay-at-home orders due to the coronavirus pandemic brought her school year to an abrupt halt.

Though able to finish out the remainder of the academic year online, the live children's show, put on by her senior class fell victim to the new restrictions and closures placed on the community.

Williams' job as the Education Liaison for the production of "The Jungle Book" was to visit elementary schools and do readings to promote the show also ceased under the new statewide guidelines.

While the show couldn't go on, Williams felt that, "through difficult times, we can find joy in something. I wanted to make light of the situation and had the idea of posting a video of me reading the Jungle Book."

She adds, "Reading brings alive the imagination and creativity of children [and] I felt bad for the kids because they were not allowed to go back to school and I thought my readings could be something that they can look forward to and bring them excitement during this time of uncertainty."

A now inspired Williams launched her first reading of "The Jungle Book" via a live Facebook platform to resounding success. She has continued to reach out to kids in the community with weekly readings of other stories, like "Winnie The Pooh" and "Bisquit," and provides educational links to coloring pages and finger puppet activities related to the stories that children can do on their own or with their parents.

Williams says, "I believe that every day we have the power to make an impact and difference in the world. A good deed no matter how small or big makes a difference."

[Madison Williams' next Story Time will be "Curious George" on April 30. Follow her on Facebook at Madison Williams]
