Governor Wolf Draws Praise for COVID-19 Program

National health policy leaders have endorsed Governor Tom Wolf's most recent mitigation efforts to stop another surge of COVID-19 cases in the commonwealth.

"In this pandemic, it is imperative to take bold action before cases rise exponentially—to get ahead of the curve," said Ezekiel J.

Emanuel, M.D., Ph.D., former special advisor for health policy to President Obama, and vice provost for Global Initiatives at the University of Pennsylvania.

"Gov. Wolf is doing just that.

We need to ensure physical distancing, the wearing of face masks, and limiting indoor activities. Gov. Wolf's actions to implement these measures will save lives and allow continued reopening of the economy in a safe and smart way."

"Governor Wolf is making the very difficult and very necessary decision that will save lives in Pennsylvania," said Andy Slavitt, former Acting

Learn About The History of the Slate Belt Textile Industry

The Slate Belt Heritage Center will post the history of the Slate Belt Textile Industry August 13 on Facebook.

Marc Blau, Karen Brewer, Dan Carrescia and Fred Derea will be presenting the Center's new book about the textile industries, "A History of the Slate Belt Textile Industry". The authors will be talking about the research and hard work that went into the creation of this book, including discovering where all of the mills were located.

The book includes maps of all the Slate Belt towns and the locations of the mills, a history of the textile industry in the Slate Belt and the stories of some of the mill owners. The authors will also show viewers some of the many items in the textile display currently at the Center, as well as a sneak preview of the new textile room. Visitors will be able to view this display for themselves shortly.

Join the presenters on Facebook, at Slate-Belt-Heritage-Center-SBHC, on August 13 for an interesting look at one of the premier industries in the Slate Belt area.

CMS Administrator and United States of Care Board Chair. "Having reviewed the data, seeing Pennsylvania taking steps before this becomes a full-blown crisis is the only way to mitigate an out of control tragedy. I know the governor realizes the hardship caused by the pandemic on Pennsylvanians. These actions will help bring a quicker end to them."

"Governor Wolf has shown throughout this crisis that he is doing what Washington refuses to do: let science and public health dictate decisions, and taking needed steps to protect the people of Pennsylvania from COVID," Ron Klain, former chief of staff to Vice-President Biden, and President Obama's 'Ebola czar' said. "That is the best plan to save lives, and, in the long run, promote a sustainable economic recovery."

Gov. Wolf and Secretary of Health Dr. Rachel Levine put in place additional mitigation efforts on July 15. These health experts and the CDC have noted that limiting indoor activities and wearing masks can have a strong positive effect on curtailing another surge.

There is strong evidence to support the state's mitigation efforts from several different data points. The state is seeing an increase in cases in the 19-24 and 25-49 age demographics, repeating the cycle experienced at the beginning of the outbreak. And as Dr. David Rubin from Children's Hospital of Philadelphia and its PolicyLab has reported, they are seeing a dramatic increase in these age brackets throughout the state.

Talking and Breathing May Spread The virus

People resistant to social distancing may reconsider that thought after a prestigious scientific panel told the White House Wednesday night that research shows the coronavirus can be spread not just by sneezes or coughs, but also just by talking, or possibly even just breathing.

“While the current [coronavirus] specific research is limited, the results of available studies are consistent with aerosolization of virus from normal breathing,” according to the letter, written by Dr. Harvey Fineberg, chairman of a committee with the National Academy of Sciences.

Fineberg said that he will start wearing a mask when he goes to the grocery store.

Several other experts are now talking about wearing masks every time you interact with the public during essential visits to places like your local grocery store or pharmacy.

Considering that people with no coronavirus symptoms at all can carry the virus, a simple conversation with someone like that could spread the virus to you if you are less than six feet apart.

Met-Ed Suspends Shut-offs

Effective immediately, Met-Ed is temporarily discontinuing power shutoffs for customers who are past due on their electric bills. FirstEnergy, Met-Ed's parent company, will continue to monitor the coronavirus response situation and adjust the shutoff policy in the future as circumstances develop.

Met-Ed encourages customers who are having difficulty paying their electric bill to contact its customer service department at 1-800-545-7741 to discuss customer assistance programs.

PPL Waives Late Fees

PPL Electric Utilities has waived all late payment fees and announced it will not cut service. PPL has several programs available to help customers having a hard time paying their bills: OnTrack offers a lower, fixed monthly bill and debt forgiveness for customers who make 150 percent of the poverty level or less. CARES can help customers experiencing a temporary hardship. Calling 1-800-358-6623

Weona Park Book

A Centennial book is being written to commemorate the 100th Anniversary of Weona Park in Pen Argyl.

Anyone with fond memories or interesting stories should send them to Walt Cole at wrcole3@gmail.com. This would include any information from your parents or grandparents. Perhaps a grandparent or great-grandparent helped to build the park, or worked on a WPA project during the Depression. Perhaps you worked at the park, were a life guard or had an interesting experience.

Stories about sporting events, swimming, or any activities would be of interest. They are also interested in pictures of family reunions, church gatherings or other organizations having picnics at the park. They are also looking for pictures of the clay tennis courts, the old miniature golf course, the band shell and events at the athletic field. Please check out those old photo albums for memories to share.

- Avoid spraying cleaners directly onto your device.
- Apple is recommending the use of 70 percent isopropyl alcohol wipes or Clorox Disinfecting Wipes to wipe down any hard, nonporous surfaces.

However, they say you should avoid using them on leather or fabric to prevent damage. According to Dr. Donald W. Schaffner, extension specialist in food science and distinguished professor at Rutgers University, these are “fairly gentle disinfectants.”

However, you should avoid using chlorine bleach, according to Schaffner. This could damage your phone. Westenberg further suggested that keeping your phone in a sealed case will make it easier to wipe it down with disinfectant wipes.

Quarry Holes Filled With Water and Hidden Dangers

During hot weather some quarry lakes look inviting, but there many hidden dangers: deep water, cold water, submerged abandoned machinery and car wrecks, underwater ledges and recesses, hidden currents and tunnels, submerged plants, dead animals and excrement, rubbish, pollution and dangerous algae.

The greatest danger is cold water which is much colder than rivers, lakes and the sea. Many quarries are so deep that they are fed with water from underground springs or aquifers. This water originates deep within the ground, and is extremely cold. You are likely to become exhausted much more quickly than you would think. In addition to this, a sudden plunge into cold water could cause your body to go into "shock".
