Severe Impact From Elsa Not Likely in Slate Belt Flash Flood Watch From Noon Today Thru Friday Morning.

With the Slate Belt still dealing with downed trees and power outages from Tuesday night's thunderstorms, tropical storm Elsa will bring another round of storms to the Slate Belt beginning later today. Fortunately, the Slate Belt is on the western fringe of the storm. According to information released at 5:00am this morning by the National Hurricane Center, rainfall in the Slate Belt will not likely exceed two inches. Wind is also not expected to pose any problems.

Nonetheless, the National Weather Service says that a Flash Flood Watch continues for portions of northern New Jersey and Pennsylvania, including in northern New Jersey Sussex and Warren and in Pennsylvania the Slate Belt, and Berks, Carbon, Lehigh, Monroe, and Northampton counties from noon today through Friday morning.

Heavy rainfall will develop over portions of eastern Pennsylvania and northwestern New Jersey ahead of Tropical Storm Elsa this afternoon. The area will see 1 to 2 inches of rain with locally higher amounts at that time. Another 1 to 2 inches of rain is expected with Tropical Storm Elsa tonight into early Friday morning.

Heavy rain in a short period of time may cause streams and creeks to rise quickly out of their banks and there is the potential for flash flooding in areas of poor drainage.

Storms Today More Rain Friday

Friday, Showers and possibly a thunderstorm before 11am, then a chance of showers between 11am and 2pm, then a chance of showers and thunderstorms after 2pm. Some of the storms could produce heavy rainfall. High near 84.

Pollen today: Low 1.2 rating on a scale of 12. Top pollen producers today will be grasses.

Blueberry Day

Today is National Blueberry Day. Just about every other fruit has its day of recognition. Yet, somehow Blueberries have not had a day designated in its honor... up until now.

It is bizarre, that Blueberries have just now received its fair and just recognition with a special day. In addition to tasting great, Blueberries are loaded with fiber and rich in antioxidants. Blueberries are one of the healthiest fruits you can eat. The most notable health benefits of blueberries include: helps lower cholesterol to promote heart health, reduces the risk of cancer, and can even help to slow the aging process.

Did You Know? Most blueberry bushes require at least two bushes of different varieties, to pollinate and produce berries.
