With hunting and outdoors activities increasing at a time when woodlands and brush are becoming increasingly dry, DCNR is urges residents to guard against increased wildfire dangers. State officials note the current dry and unseasonably mild period comes at a time when wildfire dangers normally are high, and critical conditions can develop almost overnight in many forested areas of Pennsylvania.

Rain is expected this week throughout the state, but Bureau of Forestry officials note crews now are battling a wildfire that has scorched an estimated 600 acres on State Game Lands 221, Monroe County.

CDC Expands the Definition of 'Close Contact'

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention released new guidelines on Wednesday regarding what counts as "close contact" with someone who has COVID-19.

The expanded definition includes brief but repeated exposure to others with the virus that adds up to 15 minutes over a 24-hour period. Previously, the CDC defined close contact as spending 15 consecutive minutes or more within six feet of someone with COVID-19.

This makes mask-wearing even more important for preventing transmission

Grants Save Money and Reduce Pollution

Harrisburg, PA – Grant funding for energy efficiency and pollution prevention projects for small business owners and farmers is still available from the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) through the Small Business Advantage Grant program.

"This grant program was created with small businesses and farmers in mind. There are tremendous monetary savings available to Pennsylvania's small business owners by installing energy-efficient equipment, such as boilers, LED lighting, and Energy Star certified heating, ventilation, and air conditioning systems," said DEP Secretary Patrick McDonnell. "Pennsylvania farmers can also benefit by using these funds to undertake projects which will divert sediment and nutrient runoff from our waterways."

Pennsylvania farmers and other small business owners with 100 or fewer full-time employees are eligible for the grants. Projects must save the business a minimum of $500 and 25 percent annually in energy consumption or pollution related expenses. Natural resource protection projects are exempt from the minimums; however, the projects must be able to quantify sediment and nutrient reductions into nearby waterways.

Businesses can apply for 50 percent matching funds for equipment or materials, up to $7,000, when adopting energy-efficient or pollution prevention equipment or processes. Applications are considered on a first come, first served basis, and will be accepted until fiscal year 2020-21 funds are exhausted, or Monday, April 12, 2021, whichever occurs first.

The complete grant application package is available by visiting the DEP Small Business Ombudsman's Office's site.

To contact the Small Business Ombudsman's Office, call 717-772-5160 or email raepadvantagegrant@pa.gov.

Senate Bills Strengthen PA.Mental Health Coverage

The State Senate approved legislation to ensure that mental health and substance use disorders receive the same level of care as other health issues, according to Senator Mario Scavello (R-40).

.House Bill 1696 and House Bill 1439 would strengthen enforcement of the federal Mental Health Parity and Addiction Equity Act of 2008 by ensuring insurance plans provide mental health care that is similar to coverage for other diseases and illnesses. The bills also require insurers annually attest to steps they have taken to comply with the law.

The current system of enforcement relies on addressing complaints from consumers who may not know about the law or fully understand the services that are included in their health plan. The package of bills would ensure all insurers offer customers the level of care and services that are required by law.

"This legislation solidifies the Insurance Department's role in regulating insurer compliance with mental health parity and requires insurers to legally attest to compliance efforts and makes certain public disclosures of those efforts. It's a second layer of accountability," Scavello said. "Together, these bills will establish Pennsylvania as a leader in the regulation of insurer compliance with federal mental health parity."

The measures will be sent to the governor to be signed into law.

Chronic Wasting Disease

With the 2020 hunting season underway in Pennsylvania, the Department of Agriculture released recommended best management practices to help protect hunters and their families against Chronic Wasting Disease (CWD).

The following best management practices are recommended :

• Do not shoot, handle or eat meat from wild deer or elk that look sick, act strangely or are dead. Keep in mind that most CWD-infected deer do not look or act sick.

• Report any sightings of sick or abnormal-acting wild deer or elk to the PA Game Commission.

• If you are hunting in or near a disease management area, place your deer's head in PA Game Commission collection containers to submit it for CWD testing.

• If you have your deer or elk commercially processed, consider asking that your animal be processed separately to avoid mixing meat from multiple animals.

• It is recommended that processors take extra care to thoroughly clean equipment after processing each wild deer.

• When field-dressing or processing deer: Wear latex or rubber gloves, minimize how much you handle the organs, particularly brain or spinal cord tissue.Do not use household knives or other kitchen utensils for field dressing.Double bag high-risk parts and dispose of in an approved landfill.

"At this time, current published scientific studies support the hypothesis that there is a strong species barrier protecting humans from CWD," said State Veterinarian Dr. Kevin Brightbill. "To date, there have not been any documented cases of humans being infected with CWD."

After considering published scientific studies and best management practices, if hunters hunting outside of a Disease Management Area (DMA) are still concerned, they can have their deer tested for an $80 fee through the PA Animal Diagnostic Laboratory System (PADLS). An FAQ on testing locations, fees and process can be found on the PADLS website or to learn more about CWD in Pennsylvania visit pgc.pa.gov.
