Julia Pinter Signs With Wake Forest

By Larry Cory

Bangor High School’s Julia Pinter signed a Letter of Intent Wednesday afternoon to compete in the Javelin with the Wake Forest Track and Field team next year in Winston Salem, North Carolina where she plans to major in Exercise Science.

Her athletic career path, however, wasn’t always headed in that direction.

“I played softball up until my 8th grade year and my dad suggested that I should try (javelin),” Pinter said. “So, I came out freshman year, kind of dealt with COVID not having practice, and started throwing. I just stuck with it and I ended up loving it and started doing it more competitively.”

Pinter, who also plays soccer and basketball, still finds time to perfect her javelin throw.

“It’s kind of just time management and things like that,” she said. “I love playing sports, kind of being all around. I love my teammates being out with my friends at the sport.”

When she finds time to work on throwing the javelin, she says that “technique,” is the most difficult part of the sport.

That technique, however, has led her to consecutive Colonial League

Championships, and a second place in the District 11 AAA tourney. Along the way she also tied the school record with a throw of 136-10.

Highlights of Pinter’s athletic career at Bangor:

- Four-Year Letterwinner in Girls’ Soccer and Track and Field
- Three-Year Letterwinner in Girls’ Basketball
- PIAA 3A Track and Field Championships (Javelin) - 5th Place (2023)
- District XI 3A Track and Field Championships (Javelin) - 2nd Place (2023), 4th Place (2022)
- Two-time Colonial League Javelin Champion (2022, 2023)
- Tied school record with throw of 136-10 in javelin
- District XI 5A Girls’ Basketball Runners-Up (2021-22, 2022-23)
- Two-time qualifier in PIAA Championships in both Girls’ Basketball and Track and Field
- Team Captain - Girls’ Soccer
- Colonial League Girls’ Basketball Honorable Mention All-Star (2022-23)
- LehighValleyLive.com Flrst Team All Star in Track and Field (2022-23) and Honorable Mention All-Star in both girls’ soccer and girls’ basketball (2022-23)

NATIONAL ADOPTION DAY

Every year on November 9th, World Adoption Day encourages adoptees to share their stories. It's also a day for adoptive parents to connect with others and reflect upon their adoption journey.

For couples experiencing the pain of infertility, adoption can be a wonderful way to become parents. However, there are many other kinds of people who adopt children each year. Maybe they simply want to provide a home for a child in need. Or maybe a woman has a medical condition that would make it dangerous to carry a baby. Others adopt because they are single, but still wish to have children.

According to the United Nations Children's Emergency Fund (UNICEF) more than 150 million children throughout the world are in need of a home. This number includes the nearly half a million children that are in the U.S. foster system.

Couple Who Don't Want Kids Donates Egg And Sperm To Struggling Families

“We Just Really Don't Want Our Own. We Work As Paramedics, We're Very Busy.”

By Ben Barry via SWNS

The pair met in 2016 when they were getting a hepatitis B vaccine for work and Nay said it was love at first sight.

The pair moved in together eight months later.

Nay first started thinking about egg donation when she was 27 - around the same time she decided she didn't want a family of her own.

Nay and Luke then contacted TFP Oxford Fertility, part of TFP Fertility UK - IVF and fertility specialists - and were accepted to become donors.

Nay said: “Once I was signed off it was really straightforward. I injected myself for 14 days.

“You are constantly having scans the whole way through, which is great.

“The staff at TFP Oxford Fertility were so friendly and supportive, they really made me feel at ease at each stage of the process and kept us well informed.’

“The first time I did it, I grew 39 eggs.

“My friend took me to the surgery, which took a few hours and everything was fine.”

First donors have to inject themselves for 14 days to suppress their natural hormone production.

Then they will have a scan to check that their natural cycle is fully suppressed.

A day or two before the eggs are collected, donors receive a hormone injection to help the eggs mature and then the eggs are collected during a small procedure.

Nay said her family “weren't thrilled” when she told them she was going to donate her eggs.

Nay and Luke Chadbourne – who are both paramedics – in Qatar.

She said: “I think it is more because they have nieces and nephews, we are all on ancestry websites and we know that if one of my donor children went on to that they would link.

“It's difficult to imagine having a biological link to someone you have no contact with.

After donating her eggs, Nay said she recovered quickly and was back running within three days.

Nay said: “After the first time, I was like ‘I don't know if I want to do that again’ as it was very difficult to fit around my schedule.

“We went abroad for a few months for work and when we got back we went self-employed so I decided to do more egg donating.

How This Woman's Unborn Baby Saved Her Life

“They Told Me I Had A Brain Tumor And That The Baby Saved My Life.”

By Jake Meeus-Jones via SWNS

A woman who was diagnosed with a brain tumor at 34 weeks pregnant says her unborn baby saved her life.

Sharna Levett, 31, was heavily pregnant when she suffered a ten-minute seizure out of the blue, her left arm became heavy and her body began to jolt.

The former nursery manager feared she was having a stroke but was later told she had a brain tumor and gave birth to Ewan just weeks later.

Her diagnosis came just a year after losing her dad to the same disease.

Sharna from Torbay, Devon, said: “I was taken into a room with my midwife and consultant and thought to myself, well, this isn't going to be good news.

“They told me I had a brain tumor and that the baby saved my life.

“I think they were referring to the hormones my body was producing as part of the pregnancy, which could have spurred on the growth of the tumor causing the seizure which alerted them I had a tumor.”

Sharna gave birth to her son, Ewan, by c-section five weeks after her diagnosis - at 39 weeks - and despite medication, her seizures continued.

Sharna added: “I remained fully aware during my seizures, I knew I was having them but couldn't stop them.

“This meant that during the first months of Ewan's life I couldn't hold him as much and had to play with him on the floor.

“If I was moving around the house I carried him in a sling.”

When Ewan was six months old, Sharna had an awake craniotomy where surgeons removed 40% of the tumor, which was diagnosed as a diffuse astrocytoma.

For two weeks after the surgery, she has temporary paralysis in her left leg, foot, arm and hand.

She has radiotherapy and chemotherapy, which finished in March 2023.

The treatment caused Sharna to have an early menopause and she has trouble with her balance and coordination.

Following a stable scan in August, a month later, Sharna married her husband, Huw, with two-year-old Ewan proudly part of the ceremony.

Merlin Repsher A Fire Fighter For Life

by Larry Cory

It's safe to say that Merlin Repsher has been a fire fighter in the making most of his life, and therefore not surprising that he is celebrating 60 years of service with the Bangor Fire Department.

Much of his career path has been filled with many memorable experiences that have led him to a satisfying, lifelong experience as a fire fighter. As a child, he lived on Miller Street just a short distance from the Second Ward Fire company in South Bangor. One night, while he and his family were visiting friends on Messenger Street in Bangor, a few blocks from home, they received a call that the A & P (now the Bangor General Store on Broadway) was on fire. He was asked if he wanted to walk "uptown" to see the fire, which was an experience that he would never forget.

His uncle was the fire chief in Cornwall Heights, Bucks County where Repsher recalls him responding to fire calls. "One time he took me to the station and showed me how to operate the siren on one of the fire engines," Repsher said. "He had to lift me up so I could stand on the running board and depress the siren switch with my hands. I kept at it until he lifted me off the running board."

At play in his youth, he fondly remembers spending time playing with toy fire trucks, and when the fire whistle sounded, he knew that the real fire trucks would be rolling ASAP.

"I guess the bottom line is, from early childhood with my uncle's influence, I (always) wanted to be a fire fighter," he said.

After serving his country with the Air Force, he returned home and submitted an application to Rescue Fire Company to become a fire fighter.

He was accepted into active membership on October 6, 1963 to serve a one-year probationary period. Sixty years later, he continues his service to the community as an active fire fighter.

During his career he has served as Chief Engineer of the Pumper for 35 years and was Assistant Fire Chief for five years. He also served in every position from Fire Recorder to President, except for Trustee.

In 2013 he was given a citation by Matt Cartwright honoring him for 50 years of service, and just a short time ago, he received a similar citation from Ann Flood for 60 years of service.

In 1964, he began attending Northampton County Fire School classes and their monthly business meetings. In 1972, he was elected Treasurer, a position he still holds 51 years later.

Repsher was a PA State Fire Academy Certified Non-Suppression Instructor and Northampton Community College Adjunct Professor, teaching 30-hour classes in Pump Operations as well as a VFIS Certified Emergency Vehicle Driver Training Instructor.

One of the accomplishments which Merlin is most proud of is when he and Anthony Curcio in 1972 introduced the idea of using a new alerting system, where each member had an alerting unit which was activated by Blue Mountain Control Center. This took the place of the pull stations throughout the town which had activated the siren.

He also is well known for his rendition of taps on Veterans Day and Memorial Day.

New Hope For Migraine Sufferers

By Stephen Beech via SWNS

Migraine sufferers have been offered fresh hope after research discovered potential new ways of treating the debilitating headaches.

Around one in five women, one in 16 men, and one in 11 children have regular migraines - with attacks three times more prevalent in women.

Now, an international study of the genetics of migraine has provided new insights into the biology behind the attacks.

Scientists say it will enable detection of rare variants protecting against migraine, opening an avenue for new drugs to treat the problem.

An international team of researchers, led by deCODE Genetics in Iceland, analyzed genetic data from more than 1.3 million participants of which 80,000 had migraine.

The scientists focused on detecting sequence variants associated with the two main subtypes of migraine: migraine with aura - often referred to as “classical migraine” - and migraine without aura.

The results highlight several genes that affect one of the migraine subtypes over the other, and point to new biological pathways that could be targeted for therapeutic developments

Although recent advances have been made in studies of the genetics and underlying biology of migraine and new treatments recently developed that are effective for many migraine sufferers, they do not work for all types of migraine.

Professor Kari Stefansson said: “Four novel migraines with aura associations were revealed and 13 variants associated primarily with migraine without aura.

“Of particular interest were three rare variants with large effects pointing to distinct pathologies underlying different types of migraine.

Businessperson and Volunteer of the Year

Justin Huratiak and Karen Brewer

As a businessperson in the Slate Belt, Justin has shown exemplary commitment to the community in many ways. Huratiak Homes owns several properties in downtown Bangor and Justin strives to renovate in ways that work toward revitalization.

Justin initiated the weekly Quarry Bites & Brews event and donated the space, which is also used for the weekly Bangor Farmers' Market. His business donates to multiple charitable organizations and local youth sports. Justin is engaged in the community as a Washington Township Supervisor, on the Washington Township Recreation Committee, and Plan Slate Belt Steering Committee.

His input is greatly valued at the SBCC and UMBT Economic Development meetings. Based on several nominations, it's clear that Justin is admired as a businessperson and that genuinely cares about the Slate Belt.

As a volunteer, Karen has cheerfully served the Slate Belt community for over 56 years in numerous ways. Karen has had an impact on youth as a cheering coach for 20 years and as a Girl Scout leader, helping girls complete activities and earn badges.

She volunteers at St Rocco's Church and Safe Harbor, helping to provide for the less fortunate. Karen judges entries at the Blue Valley Farm Show and takes pride in running the Bangor Public Library book sale each year. Karen oversees the Italian Room at the Slate Belt Heritage Center, where she invested considerable effort gathering and displaying relics from Bangor residents with Italian roots.

She co-authored the book titled Letters to Homefront Magazine, a love story between a community and its WWII soldiers. Karen's selfless dedication to others demonstrates her genuine care for the community and attests to her remarkable character.

Slaters Shut Out Knights 14-0

Pen Argyl Clings to Series Lead 52-48-4

Touchdown passes by Greg Campbell of 54 yards to MJ Siu (L) and 44 yards to Alex Farensbach (R) made the difference in the Slaters' 14-0 win in the 104th renewal of the Slate Belt Rivalry. Pen Argyl ran 75 plays to Bangor's 41 and recorded 17 first downs to just 8 for the Slaters. The Bangor defense halted several promising Pen Argyl drives, one drive covering 93 yards was stopped at the Slaters' four-yard line on downs in the fourth quarter.
