How Early Should Parents Start Sleep Training Their Babies?

By Amy Reast via SWNS

A sleep expert says parents should start sleep training their babies as early as just three months – rather than “waiting until you’re desperate.”

Catherine Hart, 40, specializes in sleep and has helped thousands of exhausted parents get their little one snoozing.

While there are endless suggestions for the best way to do it, she warned there is a common mistake parents often make.

She claims it’s often suggested the right age to start sleep training a little one is between four and six months.

But Catherine suggests it’s actually better to do much earlier - at just 3-months-old.

She says this is because the older babies get, the more their habits become firm and more difficult to correct.

Catherine - who is mom to Annabelle, 6, and Evelyn, 4 - from Mount Maunganui, New Zealand, said: “A lot of parents don’t realize how much of an impact they can have on their children’s sleep.

“There are a lot of misconceptions, and it’s a hugely controversial topic – but parents underestimate what they can do.

Tips To Get Babies To Sleep:

- Get on a consistent and predictable sleep schedule - babies LOVE routines and thrive on them.
- Put your baby down for sleep within their age-appropriate awake window.
- Don’t put your baby to bed too late -they get their best sleep in the first 1/2 of the night.
- Do a bedtime routine -We know from studies children with a consistent bedtime routine from an early age are more likely to go to sleep earlier, take less time falling asleep, sleep longer and wake up less during the night.
- Teach your baby how to fall asleep on their own. It’s the biggest factor that I’ve faced working with families that will significantly reduce night wakes and ensure longer naps.

Volunteers Turn Bungalow Into a Dream Home for 10-year Old Quadruple Amputee

By Douglas Whitbread via SWNS

A ten-year-old boy who lost both arms and legs to illness has thanked a group of kind-hearted volunteers who turned his bungalow into a “dream home.”

Luke Mortimer said he was thrilled with the adaptations undertaken by charity Band of Builders, comparing the stunning makeover to something “you only see on TV.”

The grateful lad was just seven years old when he lost his arms and legs after getting the severe bacterial infections meningococcal meningitis and septicemia.

He later moved to the ground-floor home, in Embsay, UK, which his dad Adam Mortimer had begun to adapt before reaching out to Band of Builders for help.

The 12-strong team, who worked for free, finished most of the work on the property - including a new kitchen, heating system, shower room and wooden flooring - in June.

And after they completed the final touches, they gave delighted Luke the first tour of his new home on Sunday (Sept 3).

Luke said: “I would like to thank the Band of Builders team for making my life so much easier around my home.

“I can remember that when they first came the house looked like a wreck, but then within a few weeks, it looked like a dream home that you only see on TV and I still can’t thank them enough.”

The refurbished house now has easy-to-use fittings in the shower room and a smooth floor in the kitchen, where Luke spends a lot of time with his brother, Harry.

The young lad’s carpeted bedroom has also been fitted with cupboards, and he even has places on his wall for his framed rugby shirts, signed by his favorite players.

Dad Adam, 49, a builder by trade, said he was overwhelmed with the work of the charity, which regularly helps out the families of those with life-changing injuries.

He said: “We are massively grateful to Band Of Builders for coming into our house and helping to make the house accessible for Luke.

Band of Builders on-site at Luke Mortimer’s house.

“The work would have taken me years to complete, but the Band Of Builders got us to a decorated finish in 8 weeks.

“There isn’t enough praise, and thank yous that we can give to Band Of Builders! What an amazing charity and bunch of people.”

Luke, previously a keen rugby player for Skipton RFC in North Yorkshire, was first struck down with meningococcal meningitis on December 13, 2019.

He was transferred to Sheffield Children’s Hospital, where doctors found life-threatening septicemia, also known as blood poisoning, had developed in his body.

St. Luke's Employee Moonlights as Professional Wrestler

By day, he's Dan English, St. Luke's Manager of Inventory Control for the Anderson, Easton Warren and Monroe campuses, making sure all the different areas are stocked and ready to serve St. Luke's personnel and patients for the best experience possible.

But after work, the 39-year-old transforms into Dan Champion, a hulking 6-foot-5, 275-pound behemoth who recently won the Pennsylvania Premier Wrestling tag-team title with partner Havoc as Team B1G.

"We won in a no-rules match and we hit them with a chair," Dan said of the title-winning bout as Team B1G defeated Primal Fear in a Slatington Street Fight on June 17

.Big Dan has a big show coming up with SteelStacks Smackdown II in Bethlehem on Saturday Sept. 16, featuring former WWE wrestlers The Godfather and D'Lo Brown. The show includes a fundraiser for new Bethany Ministries, which offers hope and support to local people who are experiencing poverty, hunger and homelessness.

"I try to do a lot of charity work by partnering with a local screen-printing company that promotes shows in the Lehigh Valley," Dan said. "During COVID we raised $750 for the St. Luke's COVID-19 Response Fund. I am excited to help New Bethany on Sept. 16. They are one of my favorite charities," he said.

While Dan English is known to keep things light and in order with his team on the St. Luke's campuses, Big Dan Champion is an impressive athlete with size plus the agility of smaller, lighter pro wrestlers that make him a force to be reckoned with.

"At St. Luke's, my department is part of the supply chain, so we stock up all kinds of supplies for the different areas," Dan said. "We do have fun and try to keep it light, talking about sports or whatever to keep it loose."

Dan, who played high school soccer at Phillipsburg High School in New Jersey, loved watching pro wrestling on TV as a child. When he was in high school, he and several friends built a backyard ring and did their own wrestling shows. When he turned 18, he and some of his friends went to a now defunct wrestling school to learn the craft.

Moravian Museum Music & Lecture Series

Nazareth, PA—The Moravian Historical Society is pleased to announce that its fall Museum Music and Lecture series will kick off on Sunday, September 17 at 2:00 p.m.

Dr. Andrea Lynn Smith, Professor of Anthropology at Lafayette College, will discuss her recent publication, Memory Wars: Settlers and Natives Remember Washington's Sullivan Expedition of 1779. Smith's research explores the public memory of the Sullivan Expedition (1779) of the Revolutionary War. This expedition, the brainchild of George Washington, led to the destruction of some forty Haudenosaunee (Iroquois) villages. Today it is the subject of over 60 historical markers in Pennsylvania and well over 200 in New York. In Memory Wars, Smith contrasts settler accounts with how the Sullivan story is expressed at Haudenosaunee cultural centers.

Smith's previous books include the award-winning Colonial Memory and Postcolonial Europe: Maltese Settlers in Algeria and France (2006, Indiana); and Rebuilding Shattered Worlds:

Creating Community by Voicing the Past (Nebraska, 2016). She is currently working on a book on the public memory of the 1737 Walking Purchase Lenape land treaty in Pennsylvania.

The talk will be followed by a book signing with the author and a reception.

Additional programs in the Museum Music & Lecture series can be found on the Moravian Historical Society's website: www.moravianhistory.org.

The Moravian Historical Society's Museum is open daily from 1:00 to 4:00 p.m. and is located at 214 East Center Street, Nazareth, Pennsylvania.
